

OUTWARD BOUND CALIFORNIA

Course Overview

High Sierra Alpine Backpacking & Rock Climbing for LGBTQ+ Teens

This backpacking course takes you on an adventurous, conscientious journey in the alpine zone of California's Sierra Nevada range. The Sierra Nevada Range extends 400 miles from north to south. It is filled with granite domes, jagged peaks, cool alpine lakes and lush meadows.

We currently use three main backpacking course areas: Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Park, the Ansel Adams and John Muir Wilderness. These regions are the ancestral lands of the Northern Paiute, Western Mono/Monache, Me-Wuk (Central Sierra Miwok), Eastern Mono/Monache, and Tübatulabal nations. Your specific course could take place in any one of these locations, depending on weather, and permit availability.

LGBTQ+ Courses

These courses are designed for LGBTQ+ teens to build community and cultivate self-efficacy through service-learning, leadership development, and self-discovery in natural environments. This course is staffed with Instructors who have lived experiences with and demonstrated support for the LGBTQ+ community. Staff strive to create a safe space for teens who have experienced being marginalized due to their identity, and/or are exploring their sexual and/or gender identity. Students should expect a traditional Outward Bound course structure, where they'll learn technical skills and take responsibility for daily activities, while also developing relationships and building community with other LGBTQ+ young adults.

Backpacking and Course Terrain

Traveling through mountain terrain is exhilarating and often physically exhausting. Travel days are generally very long and require great stamina and endurance. Expect to travel primarily on high quality trails through beautiful alpine lake areas. You may ford waist deep rivers where no footbridges are present.

Rock Camp

The rock climbing section may occur at either a concentrated frontcountry location or a remote backcountry location. During this section your days will include a mix of climbing, peer-mentoring and learning with your fellow students how to climb, belay and rappel safely. There may be opportunities to camp on top of granite domes, experience amazing free-hanging rappels or explore stunning river gorges. With practice and focus, you will learn skills that will help you be a supportive climbing partner after your course.

Miles Traveled Daily

As a general guideline, expect to travel approximately 3-7 miles a day. Crews may cover 10+ miles per day as terrain and fitness allow.

Physical Fitness

Students must come prepared for a physically, mentally and emotionally-demanding yet equally rewarding experience. One of the best ways to enhance your experience and set yourself up for success is to arrive physically fit. Use our physical prep guide for ideas!

Pack Weight

Packed backpacks typically weigh between 30-40% of your body weight, at a minimum around 40 pounds. This varies person to person based on size, stature and physical ability.

Instruction and Skills

Previous backpacking experience is not necessary. We will teach you the skills for backcountry travel both interpersonal and technical skills. For more details please read Attending Outward Bound.

Technical skills: how to pack appropriately, load a backpack, set up tarps, camp craft, navigation, how to sleep warm in your sleeping bag, and how to cook your group meals over backcountry stoves.

Interpersonal skills: group travel, risk management, weather and hazard assessment, communication skills, and learning how to work as a team.

Training, Main & Final

Fundamental in Outward Bound's educational outcomes is the concept of "Training," "Main," and "Final." Our hope is to transfer leadership and decision-making skills over to students through an intentional progression. As the course advances, instructors will take on more of a 'coaching' role. This provides a safety net for students to work through their decision-making and risk management development. Read about the culminating Final Expedition below.

Overview

Course Start – There is a 2 to 3-hour drive from the airport to the course start location on windy mountain roads, typically on a bus. If you are prone to motion sickness, make sure you plan for this accordingly! You will spend the first day gearing up for the field and meeting the other members of your team. Group gear like food, tarps, kitchen equipment and first aid supplies will be divided up among group members. Depending on your specific itinerary, you may hike a few miles on Day 1. As this is not a guided trip, all group members will pitch in to do community roles including cooking, washing pots, and setting up tarps.

Peak Attempt – Some groups will attempt to summit a peak. These peak attempts often require pre-dawn starts, waking as early as 4am. You will typically launch from a basecamp so that you can leave some of your gear at camp. For all of the effort and teamwork they require, peak attempts can be one of the most rewarding experiences on an Outward Bound course.

Solo – The solo experience provides an important break from the rigors of the expedition, and a chance to reflect on your course thus far. With an adequate amount of food and sufficient equipment, you'll spend time alone at an assigned campsite to rest and reflect. Solo sites are chosen to have as much solitude as possible, within earshot of your instructors for management considerations. You will not travel during this time and your instructors will check on you periodically, but you will be mostly alone for the duration of your solo. Solo may last in duration from a few hours to a full 3-days depending on age and course length. Many students are initially nervous about solo but most are ready for a break from the group when the time for solo arrives. This activity may be abbreviated or eliminated as Instructors assess the weather, terrain, or other factors that could affect the outcomes of solo.

Service – Service is an integral part of the Outward Bound curriculum. We encourage service to the environment in the form of leaving campsites cleaner than we find them and being mindful of our impact.

Final Expedition – Outward Bound believes that an appropriate amount of independence is a powerful educational tool. In order to deliver that benefit, our instructors gradually transfer leadership responsibilities to the students culminating with a Final Expedition or challenge of some kind. Near the end of course, if you and your group have demonstrated the necessary leadership, team problem-solving and backcountry living skills, you may be given the opportunity to travel with more independence, or participate in another kind of culminating challenge as a group. This is your opportunity to demonstrate the skills you have acquired in the previous weeks. Final Expeditions can last for one to five days, depending on staff assessment of students' abilities and terrain. Outcomes are to work together, problem solve, and accomplish a goal independently, while utilizing all the skills you have acquired.

Personal Challenge Event – Some Outward Bound courses end with a Personal Challenge Event. This may take the form of an individual physical effort such as a 3-8 mile run. It may also take other forms such as an obstacle course, or instructors may facilitate a different type of challenge to better match how the students want to grow.

Final Days – In preparation for your travel back home, the second-to-last afternoon of your course will be spent de-issuing and cleaning all Outward Bound gear followed by a special graduation ceremony. Simple backcountry showers will be offered. Departure from the trailhead will be between 6am and 8am.

Note – On the first and last day of course there will be other Outward Bound groups at the same starting and ending locations as your crew. These other groups may not be affinity courses, nor match the identities of your affinity course if they are. Typically, several crews will meet simultaneously at the airport to transport to the course start location. With the exception of course start/end travel and activities, you will be contained within your course-specific crew.

Outward Bound courses are physically and socially demanding. Students who are unmotivated or struggle with inappropriate behaviors on course may be dismissed. Students who are dismissed are not eligible for a refund. Please see our Payment, Cancellations & Admissions Policies and the Behavior Agreements in your application materials for more details. You and your family should be prepared to make a commitment to being in a challenging, formal educational setting for the entire length of the course.
